Silver “Best in American Living Award” for Wolf Architects

NAHB: “The judges praised the very customized, barrier-free concept for the client.”

At the International Builders’ Show in Las Vegas, Nevada, in January 2020, Wolf Architects’ “Bathroom for S & G” received a “Best in American Living Award” from the National Association of Home Builders. Just one small part of a residential renovation and expansion, this bathroom with a curb-less, open shower makes use of distinctive materials to create a welcoming, restful retreat for a couple looking forward to aging-in-place: thin, oversized concrete paneling on its walls, large porcelain ceramic tile ceiling panels, and sequence-matched cherry-veneer cabinets. King Builders of Somerville, Massachusetts, was the general contractor, with tile installer Roger Wilson.

The NAHB previously recognized Wolf Architects with “Best in American Living Awards” in categories including “The North Atlantic Regional Award” (2014), “Best in Green” (2015), and “Historic Preservation/Restoration” (2017), among others.
